

DIGITAL DELIVERY MODES

	REMOTE	ONLINE	HYBRID	FLEXIBLE		HYFLEX
Definition	 <ul style="list-style-type: none">100% online<ul style="list-style-type: none">Asynchronous and/or synchronous interactive activitiesImplemented when there is a sudden and/or unexpected situation – result of a pivot from F2F delivery	 <ul style="list-style-type: none">100% online<ul style="list-style-type: none">Asynchronous and/or synchronous interactive activitiesImplemented after consideration of the course content, educational technologies, and the student, and faculty bodies<ul style="list-style-type: none">Comprised of intentional instructional and assessment design	 <ul style="list-style-type: none">F2F & online instruction<ul style="list-style-type: none">Online: Asynchronous and/or synchronous interactive activitiesF2F requires on-campus participationImplemented after consideration of the course content, educational technologies, and the student, and faculty bodies<ul style="list-style-type: none">Comprised of intentional instructional and assessment designSuited for courses in which hands-on skill development is required	HYBRID STREAMING <ul style="list-style-type: none">F2F & online instruction<ul style="list-style-type: none">F2F participation is either on-campus or online streamingImplemented after consideration of the course content, educational technologies, and the student, and faculty bodies<ul style="list-style-type: none">Comprised of intentional instructional and assessment design	CLASSROOM STREAMING <ul style="list-style-type: none">F2F or online synchronous<ul style="list-style-type: none">Students attend synchronously online or F2FImplemented after consideration of the course content, educational technologies, and the student, and faculty bodies<ul style="list-style-type: none">Comprised of intentional instructional and assessment design	 <ul style="list-style-type: none">100% F2F and 100% online<ul style="list-style-type: none">Online synchronous, online asynchronous, and F2F delivery modesImplemented after consideration of the course content, educational technologies, and the student, and faculty bodies<ul style="list-style-type: none">Comprised of intentional instructional and assessment designStudents choose delivery mode of engagement from class to class
Strategic Considerations	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Emergency measures based on external factors (e.g., COVID-19, snow storms, etc.)Students & faculty are unaware of the delivery mode ahead of time; very little time to prepare<ul style="list-style-type: none">Students and faculty return to F2F delivery when the sudden and/or unexpected crisis is overModifications of outcomes and assessments to adapt to the online environment	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Strategic decisions about course content, assessments, & integration of technologies from onset of development, to fulfill set outcomes<ul style="list-style-type: none">Learning experiences are all onlineStudents & faculty are aware of the delivery mode ahead of time to prepareAll learning outcomes are thoughtfully considered for online delivery	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Strategic decisions about course content, assessments & integration of technologies from onset of development, to fulfill set outcomes<ul style="list-style-type: none">Blend of F2F and online learning experiencesStudents & faculty are aware of the delivery mode ahead of time to prepareAll learning outcomes are thoughtfully considered for online or F2F delivery	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Strategic decisions about course content, assessments & integration of technologies from onset of development, to fulfill set outcomesStudents & faculty are aware of the delivery mode ahead of time to prepareAll learning outcomes are thoughtfully considered for online and F2F delivery	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Strategic decisions about course content, assessments & integration of technologies from onset of development, to fulfill set outcomesStudents & faculty are aware of the delivery mode ahead of time to prepareAll learning outcomes are thoughtfully considered for online and F2F delivery	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Strategic decisions about course content, assessments & integration of technologies from onset of development for online (asynchronous and synchronous) and F2F, to fulfill set outcomesStudents & faculty are aware of the delivery mode ahead of time to prepareAll learning outcomes are thoughtfully considered for online synchronous, online asynchronous, and F2F delivery
Pedagogical Considerations	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Ensure authentic assessments are digital by design and suitable for the delivery modeTeaching and learning materials and activities are virtual and rapidly developed, primarily by instructors<ul style="list-style-type: none">Little time for review, reflection, and iterations of the course prior to implementationQuick adoption of readily available educational technologiesLearning resources are digital and accessible.<ul style="list-style-type: none">Videos must have captioning & images must have alt text	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Ensure authentic assessments are digital by design and suitable for online deliveryTeaching and learning materials and activities are developed and supported by faculty and eLearning specialists such as instructional designers & multimedia developersVarious educational technologies considered throughout developmentLearning resources are digital and accessible<ul style="list-style-type: none">Videos must have captioning & images must have alt text	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Ensure authentic assessments are digital by design and suitable for both delivery modesTeaching and learning materials and activities are developed and supported by faculty and eLearning specialists such as instructional designers & multimedia developersVarious educational technologies considered throughout developmentLearning resources are digital and accessible<ul style="list-style-type: none">Videos must have captioning & images must have alt text	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Ensure authentic assessments are digital by design and suitable for both delivery modesTeaching and learning materials and activities are developed and supported by faculty and eLearning specialists such as instructional designers & multimedia developersVarious educational technologies considered throughout developmentLearning resources are digital and accessible<ul style="list-style-type: none">Videos must have captioning & images must have alt text	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Ensure authentic assessments are digital by design and suitable for both delivery modesTeaching and learning materials and activities are developed and supported by faculty and eLearning specialists such as instructional designers & multimedia developersVarious educational technologies considered throughout developmentLearning resources are digital and accessible<ul style="list-style-type: none">Videos must have captioning & images must have alt text	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Ensure authentic assessments are digital by design and suitable for the three delivery modesTeaching and learning materials and activities are developed and supported by faculty and eLearning specialists such as instructional designers & multimedia developers<ul style="list-style-type: none">Teaching approaches are tailored to both online and F2F delivery modes in a harmonious way—attention is devoted to both F2F and online students equitablyVarious educational technologies considered throughout development<ul style="list-style-type: none">Technologies used to simulcast must ensure that there are equitable learning experiences for all studentsLearning resources are digital and accessible<ul style="list-style-type: none">Videos must have captioning & images must have alt text

DIGITAL DELIVERY MODES

Delivery Considerations

REMOTE	ONLINE	HYBRID	FLEXIBLE		HYFLEX
			HYBRID STREAMING	CLASSROOM STREAMING
<ul style="list-style-type: none">Content is adapted for remote deliveryStrategically consider affordances of the course content when delivering synchronous vs. asynchronous<ul style="list-style-type: none">Synchronous time is used for clarification, extension, connection and practice through active learning activitiesOrient students to a logically organized, well chunked, simple way to navigate the course — where to find materials, how to access platforms, etc.<ul style="list-style-type: none">Set expectations regarding remote learning and spend time orienting the class regarding these expectationsEstablish faculty presence online through feedback and interactions that support growth and build communityBuild a cohesive learning community online by providing students opportunities to engage with faculty, peers, and contentFocus on designing active learning opportunities synchronously and asynchronously that will allow learners to engage meaningfully with faculty, peers, and content<ul style="list-style-type: none">Use polls, discussion boards, etc.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Content is developed for asynchronous delivery that includes interactive activities that promote clarification, extension, connections, and practice through active learning activitiesStrategically consider affordances of the course content when delivering synchronous vs. asynchronous<ul style="list-style-type: none">Synchronous time is used for clarification, extension, connection and practice through active learning activitiesOrient students to a logically organized, well chunked, simple way to navigate the course — where to find materials, how to access platforms, etc.<ul style="list-style-type: none">Set expectations regarding online learning and spend time orienting the class regarding these expectationsEstablish faculty presence online through feedback and interactions that support growth and build communityBuild a cohesive learning community online by providing students opportunities to engage with faculty, peers, and contentFocus on designing active learning opportunities synchronously and asynchronously that will allow learners to engage meaningfully with faculty, peers, and content<ul style="list-style-type: none">Use polls, discussion boards, etc.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Design for synergy; ensure that the learning online and F2F learning reinforce and augment each otherStrategically consider affordances of the course content when delivering online vs. F2FOrient students to a logically organized, well chunked, simple way to navigate the course — where to find materials, how to access platforms, etc.<ul style="list-style-type: none">Explicitly discuss online and F2F learning connected to course learning outcomesSet expectations about online and F2F learningWhat are the online participation requirements vs. F2F?Establish faculty presence both online and F2F through feedback and interactions that support growth and build community in both modalitiesBuild a cohesive learning community both online and F2F, by providing students opportunities to engage with faculty, peers, and content in both modalitiesFocus on designing active learning opportunities online and F2F that will allow learners to engage meaningfully with faculty, peers, and content in both modalities<ul style="list-style-type: none">Use polls, discussion boards, etc.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Design for synergy; ensure that the online and F2F learning reinforce and augment each other<ul style="list-style-type: none">When planning F2F lessons plan with the synchronous mode in mind first.Strategically consider affordances of the course content when delivering online and F2FOrient students to a logically organized, well chunked, simple way to navigate the course — where to find materials, how to access platforms, etc.<ul style="list-style-type: none">Explicitly discuss online and F2F learning connected to course learning outcomesSet expectations about online and F2F learningWhat are the online participation requirements vs. F2F?Establish faculty presence both online and F2F through feedback and interactions that support growth and build community in both modalitiesBuild a cohesive learning community both online and F2F, by providing students opportunities to engage with faculty, peers, and content in both modalitiesFocus on designing active learning opportunities online and F2F that will allow learners to engage meaningfully with faculty, peers, and content in both modalities<ul style="list-style-type: none">Use polls, discussion boards, etc.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Design for synergy; ensure that the online and F2F learning reinforce and augment each other<ul style="list-style-type: none">When planning F2F lessons plan with the synchronous mode in mind first.Strategically consider affordances of the course content when delivering online and F2FOrient students to a logically organized, well chunked, simple way to navigate the course — where to find materials, how to access platforms, etc.<ul style="list-style-type: none">Explicitly discuss online and F2F learning connected to course learning outcomesSet expectations about online and F2F learningWhat are the online participation requirements vs. F2F?Establish faculty presence both online and F2F through feedback and interactions that support growth and build community in both modalitiesBuild a cohesive learning community both online and F2F, by providing students opportunities to engage with faculty, peers, and content in both modalitiesFocus on designing active learning opportunities online and F2F that will allow learners to engage meaningfully with faculty, peers, and content in both modalities<ul style="list-style-type: none">Use polls, discussion boards, etc.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Design content with the synchronous and asynchronous online experience in mind first; then design for F2F delivery – digital by design.Strategically consider affordances of the course content when delivering online (synchronous and asynchronous) vs. F2FOrient students to a logically organized, well chunked, simple way to navigate the course — where to find materials, how to access platforms, etc.<ul style="list-style-type: none">Ensure student learning is equitable amongst online and F2F studentsEnsure all resources, activities, materials, and opportunities are available for all learnersSet expectations and explain processes and proceduresHow will F2F, asynchronous online, and synchronous online students participate, interact, and access learning opportunities?Establish faculty presence online synchronously, online asynchronously, and F2F through feedback and interactions that support growth and build community in all modalitiesBuild a single cohesive learning community online and F2F, by providing students opportunities to engage with faculty, peers, and content in all modalities<ul style="list-style-type: none">Monitor discussion chat and reference them in F2F meetingsRepeat questions from F2F learners for online learners to hearFocus on designing active learning opportunities online and F2F that will allow learners to engage meaningfully with faculty, peers, and content in all modalities<ul style="list-style-type: none">Design active learning opportunities that allow online synchronous, online asynchronous, and F2F students to interact

References
Columbia University, Hybrid/Hyflex Teaching and Learning
Columbia University, Blended Learning
Educause, The HyFlex Course Model
Educause, The Difference Between Emergency Remote Teaching and Online Learning
Loyola University Chicago, Teaching a HyFlex Course: Best Practices and Ideas to Consider.
Quality Matters, Top Tips for Designing a HyFlex Course
The eLearning Coach, 10 Best Practices for Designing Blended Learning.